This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

THE present collection has been brought together during a period of many years with the main object of illustrating the progress and development of critical knowledge in regard to the text of the Bible. Editions have not been multiplied irrespective of their value in relation to this idea, but each distinct advance is clearly shown, almost every first edition of every particular version in any language finding a place in the collection. The collection is not merely bibliographical or curious—it is one of practical value to the student of Biblical Literature.

Of the fourteen MSS., seven are of the whole Latin Bible on vellum—mostly of the 13th century; one is an exceedingly valuable and curious MS. of the New Testament, and two are on paper, one being of the 14th, another of the 15th century.

As to the Polyglots. They are all here with the exception of the first. There is a fine copy of the Antwerp, or Royal Polyglot, in 8 vols. folio, which came from the library of Bishop Cybickowski, of Posen, and is in its original binding, but unfortunately not uniform; a superb copy of the Paris, or Jay Polyglot, in 10 vols. folio, bound in vellum; a Republican copy of the London Polyglot, in 8 vols. folio, bound in dark blue morocco; the Polyglot of Reineccius, of Stier and Theile, of Professor Lee, and practically all the smaller Polyglots. Bibles will also be found in Hebrew and Latin, and Hebrew and other languages, Latin and Greek, Latin in various versions, and German in various versions. Amongst them we may specify the very rare Greek and Latin Basle editions of 1550 and 1582, and that printed by Stephens at Paris in 1628, 4 vols. folio, having in parallel columns the Greek Roman edition of 1586, and the Latin Roman edition of 1587, and also the Hebrew, Greek and Latin edition issued at Paris in 1584 with the very peculiar dedication to Henry III. of France. Amongst the Polyglot editions of the New Testament, the exceedingly rare edition of Tremellius, published in Paris in 1569, in Greek, Syriac and Latin, should be specified, as also the fact that all the folio editions of Beza, containing the Greek, the Latin Vulgate and his own translation—namely, those of 1565, 1582, 1589, 1598 and 1642—are included in the collection.

Amongst the Hebrew Bibles, which amount to 96, will be observed the second and fourth Bomberg editions. Of the latter Butler, in his "Horæ Biblicæ" (vol. 2, p. 12), writes, "A person acquiring the fourth of them (the Bomberg editions), would have a great typographical curiosity, as it is only known to exist from the title of the fifth." In this collection will also be found a fine copy of the first Stephens edition of 1539-44, and of the editions of 1544-46 in 9 vols.; the editions of Hutter of 1587; the celebrated Buxtorf edition of 1665, the first edition of Athias of 1651, the first edition of Clodius of 1677, the first edition of Opitius of 1709, the first of Michaelis in 1720, the first of Reineccius in 1725, the first of Hahn in 1831; the first Hebrew Bible (excepting the London Polyglot) printed in England, namely, the Oxford edition of 1750, and the most sumptuous edition of Kennicott printed at Oxford in 1776-80. The collection also contains editions of the versions of Desmaretz, Leusden, Simon, Bürchlin, Dœderlein and Meisner, Jahn, Knapp, d'Allemand, Theile and Reichardt.

Amongst the Septuagint will be found the rarest of all, not even excepting the Aldine, namely, the first Roman edition dated 1586. Copies are of two dates, 1586 and 1587—the former as the work originally appeared, the latter as it was subsequently issued with the addition of the figure 1 with the pen. The latter copies are most numerous, and consequently the edition is usually known as the Sixtine edition of 1587. The copy in the present collection is dated 1586. It was bought at Daly's sale in 1792 and passed into the Hastings Library. It is bound in red morocco by Roger Payne. The editions of Field, Cluver and Klumpf, of Grabe and Lee, first and other editions of Bos, Reineccius, Bretinger, Carpzovius, Holmes, Van Ess, Jager, Tischendorf, Loch, Nestle and Swete will be found in the collection.

The Latin Bibles are not many more than fifty, but they are preëminently representative. All the great translations from the Hebrew are represented, and these mostly by the first edition of such. Thus amongst them will be found the original edition of Pagnini's translation printed at Lyons in 1527, being not only the first printed translation of the Bible direct from the Hebrew other than the Vulgate, but also the first Bible in which the chapters were divided into verses, and also the rare first edition and the second edition of the translation of Munster issued at Basle in 1534 and 1546. It is said that on this first edition of 1534 most of the alterations made by Coverdale in the Great Bible of 1539 were founded. These two editions of Munster having the Hebrew text as well as the Latin translation appear amongst the Hebrew and Latin Bibles.

The collection also contains a large paper copy in the original binding with metal clasps complete of the celebrated first Zurich edition of 1543, being the translation of Leo Juda printed by the printer of the first complete English edition of the Scriptures; the first edition of the peculiar translation of Castalio made in 1551 and dedicated to King Edward VI.; the first edition of the translations of Tremellius and Junius printed at Frankfort in 1575, the translation of Schmidt 1697 issued at Strasburg, the remarkable translation of Le Clerc of the Old Testament direct from the Hebrew issued at Amsterdam in 1710 in four vols. folio; the celebrated translation of Houbigant issued at Paris in 1743, 4 vols. folio, which by reason of its giving the Hebrew text also is placed with the Munster editions above mentioned amongst the Hebrew and Latin Bibles. There is also the little known but remarkably accurate translation of Dathe issued at Halle in 1791-79. It will therefore be seen that practically every Latin translation direct from the Hebrew is represented in this collection, and these, with the exception of one, the least important of all—the Schmidt translation which is represented by the second edition—are all in the original editions.

The Vulgate is represented by the Sacon editions printed at Lyons in 1511 and 1522, and the Kerver editions printed at Paris in 1526 and 1534, also by one of the rarest of all the Latin editions, namely the Cologne edition of 1530, of which no other copy is known but that in the Stuttgart Library. We should also mention the exceedingly rare first Benedictine edition issued at Paris in 1541, the first Lovain edition of 1547, in which Hentenius amends the Vulgate, and the first edition of Andreas Osiander of 1606 also amending the Vulgate. Amongst the Latin editions mention should be made of the remarkably rare Cratander edition printed at Basle in 1526, which was a translation into Latin from the Septuagint; also of the fact that copies will be found in the collection of the first, second and third editions of the Latin Bible printed in London. Specimens will also be found of the Commentaries of De Lyra issued in the fifteenth century.

Of the Greek Testament, there are 270 editions—amongst these the first, second and third editions of Erasmus should be noticed, as also the first edition of Bebelius 1524, which is so rare that Theile was ignorant of it and Dibdin remarks that it has not been noticed by either Michaelis or his editor Marsh. Amongst the first editions of the Greek Testament we may specify—the first editions of Plater 1538, of Crispin 1553, of Raphelingus 1591, of Vignon 1590, of Stoer 1609, of Whitaker 1632, two copies of the first Elzevir edition of 1624 varying, of Curcellæus 1658, of Pearson 1665, of Fell 1675, of Mill 1707, of Gerhardus 1711 of Maittaire 1714, of Bengel 1734, of Ruddiman 1741, of Wetstein 1751, of Griesbach 1775-77, of Matthæi 1782-88, of Knapp 1797, of Schott 1805, of Valpy 1816, of Vater 1824, of Van Ess 1827, of Scholz 1830-36, of Burton 1831, of Lachmann 1831, being the first critical text ever issued, of Scholefield 1834, of Trollope 1837, of Hahn 1840, of Tischendorf 1841, of Greenfield 1843, of Alford 1849-61, and others. It would be difficult to discover the first edition of any version of the Greek Testament not in the collection. In it will also be observed the splendid Mazarine edition of 1642, and a large paper copy of the Duke of Grafton's edition of 1803-7 of which only 50 copies were issued. Here also will be found that exceedingly rare first edition in modern Greek issued at Geneva in 1638 under the patronage of Cyril Lucar who presented the Codex Alexandrinus to King Charles the first. Still rarer however is the edition in modern Greek of 1703, which is also in the collection; for this work was solemnly cursed and burnt in the Patriarchal Palace, and copies are in consequence of exceptional rarity. See Butler's Horae Bibl. p. 161.

The collection does not profess to extend to English editions of the Bible, and amongst these there is nothing rare or of particular value, but the material on which the English editions have been founded find a place in the collection. The Rheims edition of Fulke for instance, will be seen to be represented by the first, second and third editions.

Amongst the versions in various languages we should note the presence of an unusually fine copy of the exceedingly rare edition of the Editio Princeps of the Syriac New Testament printed at Vienna in 1555—also of some very rare French, Dutch, and Italian editions, including in the last the first edition of Diodati of 1607. There will also be seen the rare Spanish Bear Bible of 1622, the Lapponese Bible of 1811 in 4to, of which only 50 copies were struck off, the first Arabic edition of the Gospels issued at Rome in 1590-1, and the first Arabic Bible printed at Rome in 1671, both of exceeding rarity. Besides these will be found the first edition of the Gothic and Anglo-Saxon issued at Dort in 1665, Pococke's Elzevir edition of the four Catholic Epistles in Syriac printed at Leyden in 1630, and the very rare Malaya Bible issued at Amsterdam in 1733. It may be mentioned too that the collection contains a copy of the cancelled edition of the Syriac Gospels and Acts printed in 1815 under the direction of Dr. Buchanan, the rare Esthomaic edition of the New Testament of 1815 and the Revel Esthomaic of the following year, the Armenian edition printed at St. Petersburg in 1819, and the Rarotonga edition of the New Testament of 1836.

The Bible, and parts thereof where the Bible itself has not been issued, will be found to be represented in the collection in 250 languages.

The Codices are not placed by themselves, but are arranged in the collection under their several heads and under the dates when printed. Amongst these will be found the following:—

BABER's Facsimile of the Psalms from the Codex Alexandrinus.

WOIDE's New Testament from the same Codex.

SCRIVENER's Codex Bezæ and Codex Augiensis.

BARRETT's Codex Dublinensis.

HEARNE's Codex Laudianus.

DOBBIN's Codex Montfortianus.

TISCHENDORF's Codex Amiatinus.

BELSHEIM's Codex Colbertinus, Codex Sangermanensis.

MASSMANN's Ulfilas, and others.

Amongst the works connected with the Bible we may specify, of the Mammotrectus super Bibliam, the Jenson edition printed at Venice in 1479, and the very rare Strasburg edition of 1487, also the Biblia Aurea of Rampigollis printed at Strasburg in 1509 and a large paper copy of Montfaucon's edition of Origen's Hexapla, 2 vols. folio, and Erasmus's Paraphraseon printed at Basle in 1541.

The total number of different works and editions is over eleven hundred, and of volumes in the collection nearly fifteen hundred. Comparing the present collection with the celebrated one made by the Duke of Sussex as set forth in the Bibliotheca Sussexiana of Mr. Pettigrew, it will be seen that the Polyglot editions in that collection barely amounted to half the editions in this, that his Hebrew editions were fewer, his Septuagints many less and his editions of the Greek Testament fewer by some 70 editions. Also it may be mentioned that the languages represented in his Grace's collection did not number a quarter of those represented in the present collection.

This is a fine specimen of thirteen century caligraphy, probably by an English scribe. The first volume wants the first leaf and the second volume two leaves at the end. The minute penmanship of this MS. places it amongst the finest known specimens. The workmanship of the Psalms, written in red, blue, and black, is a perfect marvel.

XIII. or XIV. Century. Biblia Latina. Written on vellum, the first two leaves in a later hand. Much stained and latter portion faded and worn. It is a 4to in double columns. Very numerous miniatures in illuminated initials, executed evidently by an artist of no mean order, the expressions of the faces being marvellously characteristic. Bound in old morocco, elaborate gilt tooling.

XIV. Century. Biblia Latina, cum præfatione D. Hieronymi et Apoc. MS. on vellum fol. This superb MS. is written on 343 leaves in Gothic characters, red and black, double columns with many initial letters finely painted in gold and colours. The Canon differs from the received order.

XIII. Century. Testamentum Novum, Latine. MS. 4to. on vellum in red and black, with very beautiful initial letters painted in colour and burnished gold. 192 leaves bound in old vellum. This is an exceedingly valuable and curious MS. of which the Canon differs greatly from that of the Vulgate.

XIV. Century. Biblia Latina. MS. on paper of the 14th century, written in black and red in double columns, 318 leaves. It is a folio in the original binding of wood and leather. The order of the Books, particularly of the N. T., is most peculiar.

MS. of the New Testament. A new translation into English. 2 vols. 4to. A translation of considerable merit made in the last century, but by whom does not appear. The MS. came from the St. Thomas Phillipps's Library.

XIII. Century. MS. on vellum. Biblia totius expositio allegorica. Small 4to. Beautifully written on 58 leaves in Gothic characters, double columns, capitals in red and blue. Bound in old calf, gilt.

1733-31. Amstel., Wetstien. 4to. Very rare. This translation was made by Petrus Van der Vorm, Arnaldus Brandts, Cornelius Ninaber, and George Hendrick Werndly. The Hebrew and Greek texts were first consulted, then the Latin translation of Arias and others, and then the Dutch version, and when any difficulty occurred reference was made to the Chaldee, Syriac, and particularly the Arabic versions, and sometimes to the Septuagint and the Persian. The translator also compared the German of Luther and Piscator, the French, the English, and occasionally the Spanish versions.

NOTE.

SINCE the printing of the Hand-List, to which this is the Supplement, no effort has been spared to complete, so far as possible, the Collection by the addition of those editions which mark advance or development in the text, or throw light thereon. The Hebrew Bibles are now represented by over 100 editions, the Greek Testaments by over 300 different editions, and the Septuagints have been now rendered practically perfect as a series by the addition of the first Aldine Edition of 1518 and the great Paris Edition of Jager of 1839-48. To the Latin Bibles four excessively rare editions have been added: the Peypus, Nuremberg edition of 1523, and three other editions celebrated for their remarkable woodcuts; the Crespin Edition of 1527, the Juncta of 1548, and the Basle of 1578. A fine large paper copy of "The States' Bible," printed by the Elzevirs in 1663, has also been secured. It measures nearly 19 inches in height by 5 inches in thickness.

Of the Bible in various languages many out of the way editions and versions have been added.

Lastly, amongst the works connected with the Bible may be mentioned the edition of Blanchini's "Evangeliarum Quadruplex Latine versiones antiquae, Romae, 1749," 4 vols. fol., which the Collector had for many years endeavoured to secure but without success. It is an exceptionally fine copy bound in vellum.

In all, 213 additional works have been joined to the Collection in 297 volumes, the Bible being now represented by nearly 1300 different editions and works in about eighteen hundred volumes in upwards of 300 different languages.
